The Passion Play Given Up. MR. ABBEY'S CARD EXPLAINING HIS ATTITUDE

Following is the card addressed to the public by Mr. Abbey, the manager of Booth's Theatre, announcing his determi-nation to give up the presentation of the so-called Passion Play in New York: In all my managerial experience in the tended production upon the stage of my theatre. So much, however, has been said and urged against the representation of this particular drama (if in the general acceptation of that term it may be so called) that it appears incumbent upon me to acquaint the which prevailed to induce me to abandon that intention. I had never seen any per-

Upon the primary suggestion of its pro duction by me and at my theatre I feit, as I believe the majority of Christian people feel now, a natural repugnance to its representation on the stage. entatives of the press.

I had also intended that the first represenation of the play should be on Tuesday evening, December 7th, to which I purposed inviting the clergy, the press, bar, and municipal authorities; that no money should be received for admission, but that the performance should be given to those only especially invited; that the audience should be requested to refrain from all demonstrations of approval or disapproval until the close of the representation, and that those present should then decide whether there should be any repetition of the performance. If such decision should have been adverse to its repetition no legislation or legal proceedings would have been necessary to prevent it, for in such event I had determined instantly to withdraw it from the stage. It seemed, however, to be the settled determination to coodemn its production in advance, and not to consider that I was as and held up the example of the centurion in his kindly feeling and action not only to Glasgow on November 12th, and was due let as any one in the community, and that it was my purpose to have it treated only in damage to the building is about $500.

Judge not by appearances, but judge righteous My many friends having their sympathies aroused at the abrupt termination of "The Passion" are urgent to have me explain away all misapprenensions concerning it. It is not in my nature, nor does the great cause which I advocate permit me to treat the wrongs of life otherwise than forbearingly. I have therefore determined to read ost East Tennessee towns, and prior to the introduction of railroad communication was the chief trading point east of Knoxyille.

THE LIBEL JUDGMENT AGAINST ROCHEFORT, 40 LONDON, November 29 - A Paris disputch to the Times says the Socialist paper prothe De Cissev case, while General De Cissey intends to give the damages awarded him

o the military fund. The lenlency of the sentence seems due to two reasons-first, the judges thought that a parliamentary investigation migh reveal something, and they could not there fore impose an irremediable penalty like imprisonment; secondly, the imprisonment of the defendants might have led to demonstrations in the stree s and clubs.

The judgment, however, perfectly re-babilitates General De Cissey, but the offi-
